Update
August 18, 2018

Dear Donors and Prayer Partners:

Lois Osborne emailed me this morning and asked me to pass on the information that she has been definitely scheduled for the cataract surgery on one eye next Wednesday, August 22nd. If that surgery goes well, the Dr will operate on the other eye soon. This surgery has been postponed several times due to her diabetes, but that seems to be under better control now.

Lois is understandable happy to finally have the surgery scheduled, but a bit nervous at the same time. She does however know that the prayers of many will really help both the Dr and herself do so much better.

Lois has no health insurance and the surgery also requires some expensive eye drops, so she might appreciate some extra financial help if that is possible. Surgeries in Kenya require the payment even before the surgery is done, so we have drained her medical savings fund plus some from her own personal account. The Lord is GOOD!

Thanks for listening and praying!
Blessings,
Sue
